

Random Graphs

Hanna Döring

Starting with the classical model of an Erdős-Rényi graph, we will study typical objects like phase transitions, the diameter of the largest connected component and the degree distribution. Then we discuss a generalization of the Erdős-Rényi graph, the so-called configuration model, and end with the preferential attachment model, which admits a dynamic perspective.